

Big-ticket Replacement Items Funded for Two City Buildings

by Kathleen Gallagher

On the City of Greenbelt's list of New Year's resolutions for 2015 are two significant items. One will make the Greenbelt Aquatic and Fitness Center (GAFC) lighter and brighter. The second item makes the Community Center more comfortable for users and staff. The city's Building Capital Reserve Fund totals $1.01 million for these projects: $650,000 for replacement of the GAFC roof and $360,000 for long-needed improvements to the HVAC system in the Community Center.

The Building Capital Reserve Fund was established as a separate account in 2004 for the purpose of setting aside funds for replacement or upgrade of such major systems in city-owned facilities as mechanical, plumbing, electrical, HVAC and roofing. In this year's budget document, City Manager Michael McLaughlin proposed using $758,000 of Program Open Space funding to cover 75 percent of the cost of both projects.

Council has taken the first steps to authorize expenditure of these funds. At its November 24 regular meeting, it introduced for first reading a resolution to approve contracting for replacement of the roof over the indoor pool with a new Kalwall roof by Structures Unlimited, Inc. (SUI) of Manchester, N.H., at a cost of up to $570,000. On December 3, council held a worksession to be briefed on both projects by representatives of SUI on the pool roof and by representatives of Mendoza, Ribas, Farinas and Associates (MRFA), who assessed needs for the Community Center HVAC system in 2012.

At its regular meeting on December 8, council then adopted the resolution for the indoor pool roof contract on a five to one vote and voted unanimously to award a contract of $56,750 to MRFA to provide needed engineering work prior to preparing bid materials for the HVAC project.

Indoor Pool Roof

Both the roof over the indoor pool and the surrounding flat roof, 23 years old, need to be replaced. Although the Kalwall roof over the pool is deteriorating, it has exceeded its anticipated life span of 15 to 20 years. The adjacent flat roof, which has begun to leak during heavy rains, has also exceeded the average life span. The SUI contract covers only the pool area roof.

The city has been pleased with the Kalwall roof which is SUI's own product. There is also great appreciation for the service the company has provided since the 1991 installation. The new Kal-wall roof will be twice as energy efficient as the old one. It will require less maintenance, not needing the periodic gel coating that had been necessary for the current roof.

The new roof, furthermore, will allow more natural light into the GAFC and will not itself change color. Not only will this improve the appearance of the facility but will also permit added reductions in energy costs by taking greater advantage of the newly-installed energy harvesting lights at the indoor pool.

For some folks the big question will be "How long will the pool be closed?" According to Assistant Recreation Director Joseph McNeal, the indoor pool will be closed for about four to six weeks with the impact mitigated by overlapping the closure time with the opening of the outdoor pool. Thus there will be only two to three weeks when neither pool is available.

For purposes of budgeting, the cost of replacing the flat roof adjacent to the pool roof has been estimated at about $102,000 and recommendations for contracting that work will be brought later by staff to the city

The News Review Tackles 21st Century Technology

by Cathie Meetre

Over the last year, the Greenbelt News Review (GNR) has begun a concerted effort to utilize 21st century technology more systematically and effectively, recognizing the sea change critical to survival of all print-based media from the New York Times on down.

Visible and behind-the-scenes GNR improvements accomplished in 2014 include the online publication of the archives from 1937 to today (courtesy of Eric Zhang, Joan Falcão and Tom Jones) and the implementation of a prototype city-wide events calendar (by Tom Jones). Both are just a click away from the home page GreenbeltNews-Review.com.

With a substantial assist from Diane Oberg, the paper now uses cloud solutions for internal file exchange and automated backup; at the start of 2015 it will launch new email addresses using GNR's own domain (e.g. XXXX@greenbeltnewsreview.com). The new domain-based addresses will allow GNR to select internet service providers independently of its GNR email address and to route incoming mail more effectively.

Growing out of the original email and online processes implemented several years ago by Eileen Farnham, Oberg and Falcão, GNR's initiative was instigated by Marat Moore. The process began with a series of focus groups and community discussions to pick initiatives that give optimal return on investment of time and money.

Web-based Process

In addition to the initiatives already in use, work has begun on a web-based, automated submissions process for incoming copy, including ads, letters, photos, community events and other contributions to replace email input for regular contributors. The web-based system will assure regular contributors that their submissions have been received, thus reducing the probability of loss or mishandling via manual email-based processing steps.

Longer term goals include an expanded and more interactive online presence for the paper (in addition to the current PDF), a more vibrant home page design and an update that improves quality and fills in

Artful Afternoon Sunday

On Sunday, January 4, guests of all ages can participate in a craft workshop and enjoy a program of family-friendly films. Most activities are free. Times vary for individual activities.

From 1 to 3 p.m. make colorful pom poms and incorporate them into a variety of crafts, from cuddly characters to bracelets and wreaths. This workshop will be led by Celestine Ranney-Howes, an artist-in-residence at the Greenbelt Community Center.

From 2 to 4 p.m. enjoy a series of short films featured in the 2014 Utopia Film Festival. "The Arctic Fox," an animated short by Taiwanese filmmaker Ann-lin Chao, tells the adventurous tale of a fox that escapes from the zoo. Neil Christopher from Canada offers another animated North Pole yarn in "The Orphan and the Polar Bear." Featured works by young filmmakers include Emma Penaz Eisner's surrealistic stop-motion animation "The Long Night" and Malone Lumarda's meditative live action piece "Black Rock Creek" depicting a young girl's mystical walk. The program also includes Dustin Grella's "Animation Hotline," a series of micro-animations based on crowd-sourced voicemail messages.

From 1 to 4 p.m. enjoy a variety of additional activities at your leisure. The Community Center's nine artists-in-residence will host an open house and sale. Visitors will be inspired by their work in many styles and media and find unique gifts for all occasions. Participants will also be able to view the Greenbelt Museum's current exhibit, "Greenbelt: The First 75 Years," exploring the city's history through an interactive timeline. For more local history, the Greenbelt Museum's historic house is at 10-B Crescent Road, across the street from the Community Center; tours are available between 1 and 5 p.m. for a nominal fee.

For more creative fun, register for winter visual and performing arts programs for all ages. Recreation Department programs are open to both residents and non-residents of Greenbelt. New classes begin in January, including ceramics, painting and drawing, several styles of dance and more. The winter activity guide is available online at greenbeltmd.gov/arts. Greenbelt arts programs are sponsored in part by the Maryland State Arts Council.

Top Stories of 2014

The News Review presents highlight reviews of major stories of the past year. They were prepared by Virginia Beauchamp, Judy Bell, James Giese, Thomas X. White, Diane Oberg, Cathie Meetre and Kathleen Gallagher.

FBI Headquarters

The General Services Administration (GSA) began a search for an appropriate location for a consolidated headquarters for the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) in early 2013. Early in 2014, federal, state, Prince George's County and city officials attended a rally at the University of Maryland to promote support for GSA to select the Greenbelt Metro site for the proposed new headquarters.

By mid-summer the city received notice that the GSA had selected the Greenbelt Metro site on a short list of three potential sites for the relocation. Competing with Greenbelt are sites in the suburban Springfield area (Fairfax County, Va.) and Prince George's County at the former Landover Mall. Including the Landover site in the list was a surprise which may offer an advantage to the state of Maryland over the Virginia location. On the other hand, the support of the Greenbelt site and the Landover site may be split among federal, state and local officials.

In the fall of this year, GSA sponsored four scoping meetings in the region outlining the various attributes or issues associated with each site. The Greenbelt scoping meeting was described as the best attended; the attendees included local developers, Greenbelt city councilmembers and Greenbelt residents. Some concerns were noted regarding the issue of flood plain areas near the Greenbelt site, as well as transportation impacts for the adjacent Beltway and feeder roads.

Comments on the scoping session materials were solicited by the end of November and the next steps would be the issuance of a draft Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) and its comment period when the GSA would prepare a final EIS. GSA projections were that a draft EIS would issue for comment in the spring of 2015 and the final EIS a year later in spring 2016.

The city council and its neighbor cities of College Park, Berwyn Heights and New Carrollton remain strongly in support of ### Thanks!

To the person(s) who found my "wallet" (a plastic bag with a rubber band around it that I use for my ID and cards when I'm riding my bike): Thanks so much for returning it! Best wishes and blessings on the holidays, and if ever I can buy you a drink, it would be my pleasure!

remaining issues of the archives.

Still much must be done to streamline production and leverage technology. Crucial to the process, of course, is retaining the uniquely Greenbelt culture of volunteerism among GNR stalwarts and their newer colleagues who espouse technological solutions. The paper continues its dedication to physical delivery of the weekly newspaper.

During 2014, GNR successfully proposed for an approximate $5K Greenbelt Community Foundation (GCF) grant for planning and prototyping new electronic capabilities. It is grateful to GCF for this and other contributions to the continued viability of the paper.

Volunteers with computer skills are warmly welcomed. Potential projects include continued development of the submission web-page and an online content management system with interactive access to stories and themes in the paper. A planned migration to WordPress for the website will also require contributions of expertise.

Opportunities to use more basic computer skills like MSWord and simple file manipulation include weekly cleanup of the newspaper's archives, extraction of stories and flyers from email and the tracking of incoming materials. Call 301-474-0490 or 301-655-7008 to inquire about technology-based volunteer opportunities.

In addition to receiving a gift from Santa that they had requested, the kids could obtain gifts for family members from a store set up for the event. Each child was assisted in selecting items, which were then gift wrapped for them. Parents accompanying the children received Safeway gift cards, ensuring that the families would have a holiday meal. Safeway also donated dozens of bags of food distributed at the event. Mayor Emmett Jordan and several city councilmembers interacted with the guests throughout the two-hour event.

A Veterans Day Thank You for All You Have Done

by Kathleen McFarland

Twice every year on Memorial Day in May and on Veterans Day in November, Greenbelt's Post #136 of the American Legion hosts a ceremony at Roosevelt Center to honor America's veterans, both living and dead. Thanks to the Post's efforts, and aided by the City of Greenbelt and our councilmembers, the memories of those who fought and died for our country are kept alive.

The Legionnaires have been hosting this ceremony for many years. I remember because my daughters, who made up most of the Junior Auxiliary back in the 60s, were there every year, in their blue skirts and white blouses and shepherded by their mentor, Rusty Beeg, who is still active in the Auxiliary. Daughter Anne was even "Miss Poppy" at age 5 or 6; she still says it is her "claim to fame."

This year's November 11 ceremony was blessed by beautiful weather and a large attendance. I'm saddened every year though that more faces of the World War II veterans are gone.

This year I missed Eugene Stratchko, a faithful presence in past years, who died September 1, and pioneer Greenbelter Bob Sommers, a pillar of Post #136 and the Greenbelt Museum, who was not well enough to attend. Last year, Bob placed the Legion's wreath at the stone memorial up the hill.

For those who may not have noticed, the memorial lists the names of Greenbelters who died in World War II. A bench was recently added to honor the late Joe Natoli of Generous Joe's.

The Program

Commander Michael Moore led the program. First the Star Spangled Banner was sung by the Hometown USA Chorus, spiffy in dark suits and red-and-white striped ties, as people waved flags provided by one of the Legionnaires.

Moore then introduced the mayor, city councilmembers, Legion officers and other guests, and accepted several proclamations from the city and county. Of special interest to me was the opportunity to see our new County Councilmember Todd Turner and hear him address the crowd.

Moore pointed out former commander Marjorie Gallun, a Marine veteran, seated in the front row of the audience. Now 93 years old, Marge was the first woman commander of Post #136.

After an inspiring speech by commander Moore and additional patriotic selections by the chorus, four wreaths were laid at the memorial: from the Legion, the Auxiliary, the Sons of the American Legion and the City of Greenbelt. Once the wreaths were placed by representatives of each organization, there was a gunfire salute and then the stirring sound of Taps, floating over the quiet scene, played by Steve Matera, a member of Post #136 and a former trumpet player with the U.S. Marine Corps Band.

Moore then invited everyone to a buffet lunch at the Post Home, as happens every year, providing a chance to mingle with the Legionnaires, our mayor, city councilmembers and ordinary citizens.

Chaplain emeritus Sam Hofberg, after decades of being the server of the food at all these occasions, was happy this year to oversee the event from his electric wheelchair.

A Star Post

ago, their own Rick Santos was National Commander. Sandi Dutton, whom some of us have known since she was a Junior Auxiliary member, has been National Commander of the Auxiliary. Other members have held state offices.

Many people do not realize that the Post Home is more than merely a neighborhood pub and restaurant. Through their state and national offices, the Legion supports many educational and health programs for veterans and their families. The Post also supports local causes, such as the "money-bunny" raffle, which is held every year by the Auxiliary to fund a scholarship for a nursing student from one of our local schools.

These memorial events are part of the Legion's mission to help and remember veterans and to honor the flag.

Annual Winter Concert Showcases GES Students

by Li'l Dan Celdran

Students from Greenbelt Elementary School's (GES) band, chorus and orchestra showcased their instrument playing and singing talents at their annual winter concert on December 17 at the school. More than 200 people attended the concert.

The string orchestra performed holiday favorites such as Good King Wenceslas and Jolly Old St. Nicholas and traditional tunes such as Old MacDonald. The orchestra is made up of about 33 students, some in their second year of instrumental music guided by their teacher, Karissa Strawley.

After a short scenery change, a band of about 47 student musicians played two versions of a nursery rhyme: Mary Had a Little Lamb and Mary Had a Cool Lamb. The band members and Conductor Strawley were fashionably decked out in winter hats. The band played on with Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star composed by Wolfgang A. Mozart. The band finished their set with Jingle Bells, the lively tune originally written for Thanksgiving. People loved it and wanted it for a Christmas song. The song is not about either holiday, but about fun on a sleigh.

GES chorus started their set with a Latin hymn, Dona Nobis Pacem (Latin for grant us peace) set as a round and sung a capella. This was followed by Light the Candles, a song for Hanukkah, and Nia (which means purpose in Swahili), a Kwanzaa song,

Welcomes you to our open, nurturing community

January 4, 10 a.m.

Be Ours a Religion?

Leo Jones, guest speaker;

with Van Summers, Worship Associate;

Dayna Edwards, Director, Multigenerational Religious Exploration; and guest pianist Deni Foster

Unitarian Universalists have embarked upon a seemingly endless search for an "elevator speech" that explains Unitarian Universalism.

We have become defensive about our faith, and have engaged in an unnecessary, and sometimes painful, attempt to prove to others and ourselves that ours is a religion.

Why and how can we move forward with pride in our faith and represent Unitarian Universalism without apology?

Condolences to the family and friends of A. David Spevack, 76, of Gambrills, Md., who died December 24, 2014. He was a longtime member of Mishkan Torah Synagogue, serving two terms as president of the congregation.

Sympathy also to the family and friends of Mary L. Matyas of Westchester Park, 93, who also died on December 24. She was a longtime member of St. Hugh of Grenoble parish and the Ladies of Charity.

Congratulations to V. Beth Kuser Olsen on receiving her Ph.D. in marine, estuarine and environmental science from the University of Maryland. A neighborhood graduation party took place on December 21 in 6-Court of Plateau Place.

council. An additional $18,000 has been budgeted for both parts of the roof for possible architectural drawings, permits and electrical work.

At $690,000, the combined total exceeds the amount budgeted in the Building Capital Reserve Fund by $40,000 but other funding, including additional Program Open Space monies, would be available to support the project.

HVAC at the Center

Anyone who spends time in the Community Center is all too aware of the vagaries of the heating and air conditioning system in the building, which was installed in 1996. A multitude of system components provide climate control to the building's 55,000 square feet of space, including fan coil units in room system boilers, refrigeration chillers, air handlers, pumps/circulation systems and ductwork. For a number of reasons, including not only age but also improper design or installation, some components are deficient.

In 2012 the city contracted with MRFA to assess and make recommendations on the building's HVAC system. City staff agreed with their analysis and recommendations for replacement or repair of various components to improve effectiveness, energy efficiency and user comfort.

Staff recommended exclusion, however, of one large item, a central energy management system. This alone would have cost $250,000, for now cost-prohibitive. The combined cost for all other recommendations in the MRFA report would be $368,000 and the city budgeted $360,000 to begin the work this fiscal year. When combined with the $56,750 for additional engineering services, the project would be nearly $65,000 over the $360,000 budgeted. The city will either look for other savings in the process of bid development or phase in the work over a longer period of time.

Complex Project

According to McNeal, this project will be complex. It will involve replacement of many pieces of equipment as well as installing new system elements not included when the building was renovated.

Planned improvements include replacing many fan coil units throughout the building, modifying air handling units and ductwork and to the hot water pump. Upgrades to the gym HVAC system and separation of the adult care space from the main system to improve system effectiveness are also planned.

Additional mechanical engineering services are still needed in order to proceed with development of bid specifications and documentation. Those plans and drawings will be submitted first to the Maryland Historical Trust for review for compliance with the trust's easement on the facility. When that approval is gained, the project will move forward. The hope is that proposals to undertake the work can be solicited by late spring of 2015, with work to begin in early fall of that year.

MRFA has worked for the city before in both the Aquatic and Fitness Center and the Springhill Lake Recreation Center. MRFA is experienced in school-like facilities around the state like the Community Center and the company previously worked on the new Greenbelt Middle School.

Council Questions

In response to questions from councilmembers at the worksession, McNeal said that Recreation Department staff would work to see that the impact on programming for city residents would be as minimal as possible while these projects are going on. He assured everyone, "Camp will go on!"

When these items came up at the regular meeting on December 8, all councilmembers except Edward Putens were present. The vote to adopt the resolution to have the Kalwall roof installed over the indoor pool carried on a five to one vote because Councilmember Rodney Roberts objected to council's intention to fund much of the project using Program Open Space funds, which he thought were appropriately used only for land or outdoor recreational facilities, such as parks or playgrounds.

Other councilmembers disagreed. There is no open land to buy at this time, they said, and other types of recreational facilities, including building work, are legitimate uses of state Program Open Space funding.

The vote to contract with MRFA of Rockville to complete the pre-bid mechanical engineering work for the Community Center HVAC system carried unanimously. Councilmember Judith Davis said she was impressed that the firm had taken into account in its evaluation every complaint she had heard about the HVAC over the years. Councilmember Silke Pope was also impressed with their ability to address questions at the worksession.

Roberts, however, insisted there had never been an adequate study of airflow through the ducts in the community center and recommended that there be a study on this issue. McNeal said he would talk with the engineers about doing so.

Winter Bird Walk

Greenbelt Station South Core

By March construction was well underway for the first phase of residential construction in the South Core of Greenbelt Station in Greenbelt West, even as commercial and multi-use development of the North Core was kept on hold pending a decision possibly to relocate a new FBI headquarters facility there. Five condominium units and nine townhomes had already been sold in the South Core. In April, the Greenbelt City Council took an initial step to assist in financing public facilities there by adopting a resolution establishing a special tax incremental finance (TIF) district, in accordance with the 2006 agreement with the owners to have that property annexed to the city. The resolution sets forth a framework to provide public funds for construction of a north-south connector road from the Capital Beltway to Greenbelt Road (Greenbelt Station Parkway) at an estimated cost of $8.4 million. If such financing is done (and other alternatives are being explored), such bonds could be paid off only from 50 percent of the increase in incremental tax revenues for the defined area resulting from the new construction and from a back-up special tax on properties in that area. At the end of the year, construction of housing continues.

Credit Card Fraud

In May, the Co-op Supermarket and Pharmacy temporarily suspended all patron credit and debit card use after a possible security breach in its online payment system during the week ending May 23.

Cynthia Comproni, treasurer-general manager of the Greenbelt Federal Credit Union, said that the credit union was not the point of compromise.

The Greenbelt Police received in excess of 50 reported cases of fraudulent transactions, confirming there had been some irregularities. On June 3, the U.S. Secret Service took over the investigation. Greenbelters reported that duplicate false credit cards were being used in Maryland locations and as far away as Florida.

were sung. Kwanzaa celebrates the fruits of the harvest and celebrates African ancestry.

Before the final song, Miss Greenbelt, Kristin Beauchamp, spoke about her experience with the Miss Greenbelt pageant: "It is not a beauty pageant. It's about education and becoming a better speaker."

The singers ended with All I Want for Christmas is You, made famous by Mariah Carey. The song began with a duet sung by a chorus girl and boy. The chorus clapped their hands and encouraged the audience to do so, too. Some audience members were on their feet, clapping and foot tapping to the music. Towards the end of the number, the chorus members ran out into the audience – with everyone clapping and singing along. Returning teacher, Mr. Lee Gibbs, and Ms. Rachael Yokers, a new teacher to the GES family, professionally conducted the enthusiastic singers.

The students were smartly dressed in white shirts, black pants and shoes. Before each selection, two to four students announced the piece and gave some background information on the composer and song. Some selections were performed by the second year students who stood to be recognized. The music education department will host another concert in the spring. Parents and community members are invited.

As the security officer began to call police, the passenger exited the cab. A verbal altercation ensued. The passenger pulled an unknown object from his pants pocket, threatened the officer and fled on foot. He is described as a black man, 5'10" tall, 150 pounds, with hair in dreadlocks, wearing a navy blue hooded sweatshirt, dark blue jeans and black and white basketball shoes.

She heard the door close and saw a man inside her vehicle drive away.

A theft from vehicle occurred in the 7600 block Ora Glen Drive when an officer responded to a report of a suspicious person looking in vehicles. Upon officer's arrival, he was flagged down by a citizen who said someone broke out a passenger window and took her purse. A short time later another person reported that a vehicle pulled up to the 7200 block of Mandan Road, where an occupant threw a purse to the ground and left the scene. The purse was recovered and the owner confirmed it was hers.

Scammers Working Here in Greenbelt

The Greenbelt Police Department is investigating several incidents in which local businesses are contacted by people who wear shirts with the Pepco logo and claim to be from Pepco. They contact businesses by phone and in person to say money is owed to Pepco and if payment is not made promptly, the utilities will be shut off. The person claiming to be from Pepco tells the businessperson to purchase a Green Dot credit-type card in the amount owed and give the card number to them.

Pepco is not making these calls. Anyone having information related to this scam is asked to contact the Greenbelt Police Department at 301-474-7200.

Six reports of thefts from vehicles involved the breaking of windows: Hanover Parkway near Mandan Road (wallet), 9100 block Edmonston Court (in-dash radio unit), 6300 block Golden Triangle Drive (clothing, headphones and GPS unit), 6100 block Greenbelt Road (money), 7800 block Walker Drive (clothing, shoes and a laptop computer) and in the 7800 block Hanover Parkway a window was broken but nothing appeared to have been stolen.

Other thefts from autos occurred in the 7800 block Mandan Road (two hubcaps) and 9000 block Breezewood Terrace (headlight cover and bulb). A purse was taken from an unsecured vehicle in the 6200 block Springhill Court.

Car registration items were taken in the 7200 block Hanover Parkway (rear tag, Md. 8BC4256), 7400 block Greenway Center Drive (rear tag Md. 1BB1427) and 6200 block Springhill Court (registration sticker).

In the 7800 block Mandan Road a passenger window was broken and paint was scratched, 9100 block Springhill Lane the driver side window was broken and in the 6200 block Springhill Drive two windows were broken and some of the contents of the vehicle were thrown on the ground

City Awarded Grant For Veterinary Care

The City of Greenbelt has been awarded $10,000 in a Greenbelt Assistance in Living (GAIL) Veterinary Assistance Grant from Banfield Charitable Trust. The grant provides funds to low-income households, the disabled and seniors. Residents from Greenbelt on public assistance programs, such as food stamps, Medicaid, Social Security, unemployment, non-commissioned active military and Maryland Energy Assistance, can apply for up to $250 per pet, a two-pet maximum per household. All types of pets are eligible.

City residents must also meet the income threshold. For a one-person household, the maximum income must not exceed $37,450. For a two-person household, the maximum income must not exceed $42,800. Documents proving eligibility will be required to complete the application. Citizens may apply in person, or home-bound residents may call to arrange for a GAIL staff person to assist with the application process.

Christal Batey, the GAIL Resource Advocate, was encouraged by the grant award. "Many GAIL participants feel that their pets are their family. This grant helps seniors improve the quality of life for their pets, which in turn improves quality of life for them," Batey said.

She cited the expense of veterinary care as a primary motivation for applying for the grant. "Pet owners love their pets. They so often choose health care for their pets, even if it means displacing their own care and needs," she said.

What Grant Covers

The Veterinary Assistance Grant covers basic, preventative and emergency care, including vaccinations. Extreme medical expenses will also be considered, though spay and neuter services are not eligible.

In the past, the City of Greenbelt has provided funds through programs such as Free Pet Food Pantry and Foods for our Four-Legged and Feathered Friends, a grant award for Green Ridge House residents.

The city has expanded its reach for veterinary care this year. With this extra funding, the city will be better able to subsidize pet care, as well as to work more directly with local veterinary businesses.

To apply for the program, visit the city's website at www.greenbeltmd.gov, or call the GAIL Office at 301-345-6660, ext. 2012.

A security company began investigating the Co-op, performing an electronic forensic examination, checking hardware, software and procedures involved in making purchases.

First Data, the firm that processes the Co-op's debit and credit card transactions, also checked out the system. Both investigations found no irregularities and no penetrations.

Nonetheless, the Co-op Supermarket beefed up its firewall, which now monitors every electronic communication coming into and going out of Co-op's building.

By July 10, the Co-op had installed new software and processing equipment on all cash registers and check-stands. In a six-week period, the store experienced a five percent drop in sales, significantly impacting the financial statement. Some patrons have now determined that the safest approach in today's market is a cash transaction.

Historic Theater Renovation

After more than 10 years of delay, the proposed renovation of the Greenbelt theater got its footing at the end of 2013, making it onto the list of "top stories" of 2013. After faltering at the first meeting in January 2014, council took the first official step to negotiate for contracting services with the firm of Gardner and Gardner Contracting, LLC. The city announced that the theater would close in June for renovation of the lobby, ticket booth, concession area, restrooms and projection booth. The renovations would likely take six months.

That forecast was off by a few months due to Pepco's delays with electrical upgrade needed for both the theater and the other tenants in the east building of Roosevelt Center. At this writing, the renovation is still not completed. The projected reopening is now slated for the end of February 2015.

In mid-December, council held a worksession to review three submitted proposals for potential operators of the theater when it reopens. Council selection of the operator for the reopened theater is tentatively slated for the last council meeting in January 2015.

During the closure, Greenbelt citizens, young and old, enjoyed several Saturday evening outdoor movies at the Roosevelt Center during the summer and into the fall, courtesy of the Department of Recreation.

Rosedale Departs

In January, after 59 years of providing carnival rides and concession booths to the city's annual Labor Day Festival, Rosedale Attractions marked the end of the Gaylin family's long tradition with Greenbelt. The owner said it was a difficult decision, but in the end he decided to take the carnival to Chesterfield County Fair, a nine-day event in the suburbs of Richmond, which he said would provide substantial benefit to the business and to the family. The dates of the Chesterfield event conflicted with Greenbelt's festival.

In June, Linda Ivy, chair of the festival committee, announced that Sherwood Amusements, Inc. had been hired as carnival operator for the 2014 festival.

In October, Ivy reported to city council that the Labor Day Festival weekend had presented few problems or complaints and that as a result, a three-year contract had been signed. City staff also said the festival had gone well and that the transition had been easy.

Middle School Buildings

In 2013 the Prince George's County Board of Education approved three uses for the old Greenbelt Middle School (GMS) building: the Robert Goddard French Immersion School, a large area for "swing space" for emergency relocation of schools and five rooms for rental to the City of Greenbelt. In March, it was announced that the swing space was being eliminated but that the five rooms would continue to be available for use by the city.

Albanian Film "Besa" Leads Annual Utopia Festival 2014

by Sandra A. Lange

The October screening of over two dozen documentary films several weekends ago in Greenbelt proudly celebrated the 10th anniversary of the Utopia Film Festival. Many of the films drew small crowds – some as few as ten. Even the free film, King: A Film Record. Montgomery to Memphis, 1955-1968, shown at Beltway Plaza's Academy 8 Theaters, lured only about 27 people to view this epic, award-winning documentary about the civil rights struggles of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Perhaps dinnertime (6 p.m.) is not the best hour for showing a feature film, even though light fare was provided.

However, about 30 people filled the city council chambers on a bright sunny Sunday afternoon to see one of the best documentaries of this year's entries. Besa: The Promise tells the story of an Albanian Muslim family that sheltered a Jewish family during World War II when Albania was occupied by Nazi Germany. The Hoxha family represented hundreds of Albanians who saved more than 2,000 Jews fleeing occupied Bulgaria and other European countries.

Rexhap Hoxha

The film relates the personal story of Rexhap Hoxha, who had promised his father before he died that he would return three Hebrew prayer books entrusted to him when he sheltered a Bulgarian Jewish family in his home. When the war ended, the Jewish family departed for parts unknown, never returning to Albania to reclaim the books. The elder Hoxha kept the books hidden during the long period when Albania was ruled by communists; possession of religious books was dangerous and could have caused family members to be jailed. Not until the fall of communism in 1991 did people begin to hear about the role Albanian Muslims had played during World War II.

An American Jewish photographer, Norman Gershwin, discovered the forgotten story and legacy of the Hoxha family. Through interviews with Albanian survivors and others, he pieced together an amazing chronicle of courage and heroism. When Gershwin discovered that the Hoxha family still had the prayer books, he was driven to help find the Jewish family they had saved. Eventually, after many false leads, he learned that the descendants of the family had changed their surname and were living in Israel.

Gershwin interviewed several older Muslim men and women who described an Albanian tradition to provide safe harbor to refugees and to honor promises made. The film captures the dramatic scenes that unfold as Hoxha and his son travel to Israel to return the books to the Jewish family.

Co-producer Christine Romero was on hand to answer audience questions after the film ended. She described her frustration that there is still no distributor for it even though it has received widespread praise at a number of festivals and venues where it has been shown. Without a distributor, the remarkable story of Besa does not reach a wider audience, especially at schools where its message needs to be heard.

We congratulate the Utopia Film Festival on its 10th anniversary and on introducing us to films such as Besa that remind us to celebrate our common humanity, our creativity and our complex world.

Christine Romero is also a yoga instructor for the SAGE program at the Community Center.

Originally slated to move from its shared facilities with the Goddard Montessori School in Seabrook at the start of the 2013-14 school year, the Goddard French Immersion School, which serves levels K-8, was finally able to move into its newly renovated building in August 2014. The delay was caused by the discovery of structural problems and asbestos in the building. The school looked forward to an enhanced immersion experience once in its own building, as well as the capability to expand enrollment. Russian was already being taught, in addition to French; Spanish was added this year. Having been named a Maryland Blue Ribbon School last year, Goddard achieved National Blue Ribbon School status in September. A new name for the school will be chosen before next school year.

Meanwhile, Greenbelt Middle School is in its second year in a separate new building. In its first year of eligibility, the school's Talented and Gifted program was one of nine in the state to win an award for excellence.

As 2014 closed it became less likely that the City of Greenbelt would be occupying space in the old GMS building. Following a tour of the premises in late October, serious doubts remained regarding the condition of the space, the cost to renovate it and the more than doubling of rent originally cited by the county. Although the attraction of having space to extend programs in Greenbelt West was still alive, it was apparent by the time of a council meeting in early December that hopes for a workable solution were flagging.

News Review

Throughout the year, the News Review progressed toward the 21st century. (See separate story on page 1.)

GHI Homes Improvement Program

The Greenbelt Homes, Inc. (GHI) Board of Directors moved closer to making the second rehabilitation of its historic housing stock a reality. A pilot program, in operation since 2010, first baselined the existing conditions, then added improvements (such as new doors, windows, insulation and heating systems) to evaluate options and measure their impact on members' costs or living conditions.

A number of improvements, such as replacement heating systems, doors and windows, will be funded, to the extent possible, by the Replacement Reserves, where a portion of members' charges have been deposited each month for years. Items that are not replacements of existing building components, such as insulation and casement windows (instead of sliders or double hung windows) must be funded by the members benefitted, though details of financing have not yet been determined. In December, the board determined which of these improvements it would recommend be installed in all homes of a given type (i.e., brick, block and frame) and which members could opt to install.

A town hall meeting is scheduled for January 25, where members can learn more about the Homes Improvement Program and their roles in the decision making process.

The board expects to call a special meeting in the spring where members will vote on these recommendations.

Forest Preserve

Having been feted throughout 2013 with events, free meals, and a gala in honor of its 10th anniversary as a legally protected entity, it hardly seems fair that the Greenbelt Forest Preserve became again in 2014 a subject of debate and sometimes animosity.

Issues that had been brewing for some time among members of the Forest Preserve Advisory Board (FPAB) and between the board and staff began to surface based upon requests at city council meetings, reports from FPAB, and lengthy letters to the editor of this paper from board members who thought matters were not being appropriately handled by the board or city staff. Indeed, this paper itself may have stirred the pot with a couple of stories that provoked criticism.

Controversies discussed or to some extent resolved over the year, at least for the short term, include whether Ancestral Knowledge, a local nonprofit group that teaches native living skills and primitive technology through hands-on experiential learning, should be permitted to conduct for-fee classes in the preserve; how to balance the interests of the preserve against the needs of the community gardens that preceded the protective legislation; whether the Belle Point tot lot should have been permitted within the area of the preserve, even though allowance had been made for its acreage at the time the preserve was established; and how to deal with invasive, primarily non-native plant species.

The most recent issue, control of invasive plants, not only has the broadest and deepest implications for the Forest Preserve but also raised concerns about the role of the board, city staff and city council in making decisions about the preserve. It has also drawn attention to the process by which revision of the Management and Maintenance Guidelines, adopted in 2007, should be considered as time passes.

Following a worksession on the guidelines, the council supported the opinion of the majority of FPAB in directing the city manager to proceed with identifying a forest biologist or ecologist to conduct an assessment of and make recommendations on the health of the preserve, subsequent to which a management plan will be prepared by FPAB to include control of invasives. The city council will also in time appoint a task force to develop a management plan for other city woodlands. In the meantime, removal of invasives can continue under direction of city staff only in woodlands outside the preserve.
